STARTING A HOSPITAL.

Nuns Expelled from France are coming to Rat Portage.

A Miner reporter interviewed Rev. Father Gendreau this morning with the object of finding out whether there in any truth in the rumor that some of the nuns recently expelled from France were going to locate here. The reporter was shown into Father Gendreau's cosy study where the affable priest, after learning that the reporter was sent by the Miner expressed his willingness to explain everything in connection with the opening of the new hospital.

"Personally," said Father Gendreau, I was against starting another hospital in Rat Portage, for the reason that we have an excellent institution of the kind already here, and that was the reason why I exerted my influence so vigorously to turn over the St. Joseph's Academy building to the Royal Jubilee Hospital board. You know how that proposition was received by the people: the building was reported in by a committee as being unsuitable. In the meantime the building was left on the hands of the F. C. J. order who were leaving here, and who finally turned the deed of the place over to our order. Then came the reports of the expulsion of those nuns from France, together with a private cable to Archbishop Langevin asking if some of the exiles could be placed in Canada. Monseigneur Langevin next communicated with me to know if St. Joseph's Academy had been taken over, and on my replying that it had not, his Lordship instructed me to take it over on behalf of the Oblate order, and hold it in trust until the French nuns arrived to open a hospital.

"They are trained nurses?" inquired the reporter.
"Yes. The order as I understand it," explained the priest, is devoted to hospital and educational work. I do not know what the name of the order is, nor anything about them except that their head quarters are in Paris, and that the members are trained along these lines.

"How will the hospital be run?"
"As a purely non-sectarian institution, just as the Royal Jubilee hospital is run.

"Paris, you know I suppose," said Father Gendreau, "is the Mecca of modern surgery and hospital work. The doctors will tell you that the Paris hospitals are as nearly perfect as human ingenuity and medical science can make them—that is they are perfect in their arrangements and their appliances. The ordinary private practitioner could never attempt to begin purchasing all the instruments necessary in modern surgery—unless he was a millionaire, and hence the hospital idea—of all the doctors using one set of appliances and instruments.

"The nuns who are coming here" went on the father, "will bring with them complete appliances for a modern hospital, and I will venture to say that our local medical fraternity will then be able to handle the most difficult operations and will be able to supply the most recent and approved treatment to the stamping out of disease. The doctors here are not asleep; they know what is going on in the medical world; their life is one continual study of new discoveries in science, new discoveries in appliances and treatments, and the doctors in large cities always visit the hospitals to watch the development of their own science. You will realize then how important it is to have everything in a hospital constructed in the most approved models. This I think will be accomplished by those nuns from France as soon as they get established here."

"When will they come?"
"I expect them here in a few days."

STRIKES GOLD AGAIN

Manager Casler cuts into another rich vein.

Mr. Casler, manager of the Grace mine arrived here on Sunday from Eagle Lake bringing with him a trunk load of free gold samples, which his crew struck a day or two ago in a rich lead which opened into the tunnel work. Mr. Casler was just starting for Buffalo to attend the annual meeting of his company when the new lode was struck, so that his visit to the head offices now will be very opportune in view of the fact that he will be able to tell them as a surprise of the new free gold discovery.

A Miner reporter was shown some of the specimens at the station yesterday before Mr. Casler left for Buffalo, and it may be sufficient to state that they are richer than those which caused such excitement in Buffalo last spring.

Music and Drama.

Metronome writing in the new paper Knight Errant says:

Whoever thinks a faultless piece to see, Thinks what never was, nor is, nor ever shall be.

If you good den, Sir Knight! I come to judge the players for thy masters, your readers. I will judge them fairly as my poor wit doth dictate to me, and I would have you bear in mind fair Knight, that God gave me my wit, and as he gave it so must I accept it nor complain of its poverty; neither should'st thou jeer at me if my wit balks, and runneth not merrily to perform the task I bid it do. I would fly o'er mountains but I lack the wings; I would sing sweet songs, but I lack skill of the larynx; I would play the flute, but the neighbors object; I would rouse Hades, but I have no derick, and I will therefore have to content me frizzling bad actors. A mean occupation for a man of my kidney. Go to.

The Nelson Company played Ingomar, last night to a fair audience. Mr. Nelson appeared in a role and style of acting altogether new to Rat Portagers and agreeably surprised everyone. Ingomar rants as hard as Richard III and now I believe Nelson could also play Richard—I will go further, and say I believe he could do Macbeth. Nelson has marvellous versatility—compare his sighing Romeo with that human volcano Ingomar! Did you ever see a man who could

BUY GOODS AT HOME.

If the editor of the Knight Errant succeeds in converting the people to the doctrine of buying goods in Rat Portage, he will do a noble work. If everything we need were purchased here we would get better prices in everything we buy. We should look at this question from our own standpoint, for it is a question of self preservation. The Editor of the Knight Errant approaches the subject in a roundabout and apparently jocular manner, after the style of another Don Quixote, but he rises from the humorous to a very piercing indictment in his last paragraph. We have taken the liberty of reproducing his "Editorial Stuff" entire:—

We feel flattered that the Knight Errant got such a kindly reception when he dropped into the Opera House last night. And that he was received graciously by the ladies is a fact which cannot be gainsaid. Cervantes work is all undone again, for we honestly say that Knight Errantry is again fashionable. That there is work for the Knight is apparent to the majority of us. There are seven maidens—all sisters held prisoners in the Castle of the Pines which is approached by the fearsome Devil's Gap. There are several crazy windmills in the land which will have to be choked off, and the knight must slay them now before the municipal elections come round. There are Ogres who have strange dealings with barbarians in a strange land, bartering and buying and bargaining for shoddy merchandise. The chief of the barbarian tribe is a cannibal—his name is Eaton. The Knight Errant has sworn to make him carion. Note the picture of the Knight Errant on the top of our editorial column. Do you see that awful Shape he is trampling beneath his charger's hoofs? It looks like a rhinoceros, or ten-nights-in-a-barroom, or something, but it isn't—it is EATON.

The Central Hotel is getting to be a popular rendezvous for actors and actresses who play at the Hilliard Theatre. The theatrical people say the Central is one of the most home-like hotels on the Canadian route.

One of O'Connell's "Bulls."

Some extremely amusing mistakes have been made by even the most practiced speakers in their desire to carry their audience with them. O'Connell once in an election speech in Connellia hall told his followers that if measures injurious to Ireland were brought into parliament he would go over to England and "die on the floor of the house of commons in opposition to them," and when he came back he would say, "Are you for repeal now?"—London Standard.

Palestine Violin.

The rebab of Palestine is a sort of violin. The body is a square frame covered with parchment. The instrument is played with a bow. There is but one string, a thick, coarse horse-hair, but expert performers can, it is said, get considerable variety of tone from this primitive instrument.

High Explosives.

"Tommy," said the schoolteacher to Tommy Taddella, "what do you understand by the term 'high explosives'?"
 "Sky rockets, ma'am," replied Tommy.

If the average man were as good as he thinks other men ought to be, it wouldn't be long until his sanity made him topheavy.—New York Press.

RESTFUL SERVICE

We frequently hear of people succumbing to the pressure and worryment always connected with an active business career. If people would allow themselves more frequent relaxations from their work and seek rest and comfort in, for instance, a ride upon the North-Western Limited, the most comfortable train in every respect (running every night between the Twin Cities and Chicago), the number of physical break-downs would be greatly reduced. For lowest rates, time of trains, etc. address, T. W. Tremblay, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul.

Nelson has marvellous versatility—compare his sighing Romeo with that human volcano Ingo-mar! Did you ever see a man who could ACT so variously? He will never be an Irving, but he is chasing Mansfield pretty closely.

A company supporting Mr. Nelson is a strong one. Miss Maud Proctor made a charming Parthenia. She has talent, youth and beauty as assets in her business. For the present however she will appear to best advantage in roles with a tint of the ingenue in them. She ought to play a beautiful Juliet. Miss Davidson is evidently going to do the character work, and I think she is going to be good, if her excellent acting of last night as Actea is any criterion. The men of the Nelson Company are apparently all above the average, and as for Will Yule, he promises to be the life and soul of the company. A man who can make Myron a part of such fatness can get blood out of a stone. I hope he will come out between acts and talk to us again—he is interesting. Mr. Kelly as Polydore showed exceptional ability, and Wilfred S. Roach lent an impressive dignity to the character of the Timarch. Clara Macdonald Cornyn, played some charming piano selections which were greatly appreciated. T. E. Cornyn was on the door.

METRONOME.

LECTURE.

A more instructive and interesting lecture could not have been prepared than the one delivered at Victoria Bink Monday night by Evangelists Romig and Dawdy. The program as announced was education; much to the delight and edification of the audience.

The evident appreciation of Mr. Romig and his work, was seen in the large audience that assembled, there being about four hundred and fifty present.

The Evangelist announced that on next Monday night, Sept. 1, he would deliver his famous atreptic lecture on "Honolulu the Paradise of the Pacific."

Gospel Meetings every night this week. Gospel sermons and songs and beautiful pictures are features of every meeting. Every body welcome.

Mr. J. H. Casler left this morning for Buffalo.

FROM DEATH'S DOOR

THE TIMELY RESCUE OF A BRIGHT LITTLE GIRL.

Was on the Verge of Complete Nervous Prostration and Her Parents Thought Death Would Claim Her.

When growing girls or boys are ail- ing, two many parents experiment with doubtful medicines, which only touch upon the symptoms of the trouble, leaving it to return later in a more aggravated form. When you use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, you are not experimenting—they go directly to the root of the trouble by making new, rich, red blood, and building up weak nerves—in this way they cure, and the trouble does not return. It is because these pills always cure when given a fair trial, that they have the largest sale of any medicine in the world. They are not an experiment—most other medicines are. Mrs. Wilson Johnson, Hemford, N.S., gives the following strong corroboration. She says: "At the age of nine, our daughter, Albertha, began to decline in health. The color left her cheeks; her appetite failed and she complained of headaches and a weakness of the limbs. Her health grew so bad that we were forced to take her from school. We tried several remedies, but they did not help her, and she kept growing weaker all the time. She was very pale, had almost constant headaches, and was on the verge of complete nervous prostration. In fact we feared that death would take her from us. One day I saw an account, in a newspaper of a girl who had been cured of a similar trouble through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. We decided to try these, and before three boxes were used there was a decided improvement in Albertha's condition. We continued giving her the pills for probably two months, by which time she was as healthy as any girl of her age. Her appetite had returned, the headaches had disappeared, and her cheeks had regained their rosy color. It is now nearly two years since she took the pills and she has not had a sick day since. We are very grateful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for her, and would advise all parents whose daughters are ailing to give them a fair trial and not experiment with other medicines."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure all troubles that arise from poverty of the blood or weak nerves. Among such troubles may be classed anaemia, headache, neuralgia, erysipelas, rheumatism, heart ailments, dyspepsia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, and the ailments that render miserable the lives of so many women. Be sure you get the genuine with the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" on the wrapper around every box. Sold by all medicine dealers, or sent by mail, post paid, at 50c per box, or six boxes for $2.50, by writing direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

THROWING THE LASSO.

The Manner in Which the Rope is Handled by an Expert.

"A mistaken impression prevails in the mind of the public in regard to the manner in which a lasso is handled," says an expert. "The idea that the loop always swung around the head before making a cast, especially when the rope is on foot, is erroneous. No man of experience ever makes a cast in this fashion from the ground in practical work. There are several reasons why he does not. One of them is at the movement is likely to frighten the stock, especially horses; another is that he may have to wait some minutes before a favorable opportunity occurs for making a cast. He knows that better results are obtained by sliding the rope as unobtrusively as possible, even keeping it concealed under the object of capture.

"On the contrary, however, when the lasso is cast in the air, it is absolutely necessary to swing the loop over and around the head, for the cast must be made with the greatest possible force in order to overcome not only the forward movement of the pursued, but also the action of the wind should that be to be against you.

"As to the manner of casting, some experts cast with a quick, jerky movement of the hand, seeming to use the arm very little and the body not at all. Others employ body, arm and hand, and their methods are effective when perfected by practice."

WHAT SIR WILFRID SAID.

Premier Delivers Eulogy of His Country in London, England.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who was received with prolonged cheers at the coronation banquet held at the Guildhall, London, on July 11, reported on behalf of the self-governing colonies. It was, he said, his privilege five years ago to represent his country, Canada, at the celebration held in this ancient city in commemoration of the jubilee year of a reign. However, made famous by the personality of the Sovereign, by the remarkable advance which took place under it of all the arts and sciences which contributed to the happiness of mankind, but whose characteristic for them would be the still more remarkable development of the British Empire, as it existed to-day. (Cheers.) The British Empire, as all other creations of human effort, had been the cause of many conflicting sentiments. It had inspired, and perhaps more than even would inspire, in the breasts of millions of men a deep sense of enthusiastic attachment. (Cheers.) British subjects could call the world to witness that the British Empire, wherever it had held sway, especially within the last 60 years, had carried with it everywhere an instrument of good government. In all His Majesty's possessions there was at this moment a remarkable and in some instances an almost phenomenal degree of prosperity, and among all those peoples, to whatever race they belonged, there was a universal sense of satisfaction and pride in British institutions. (Cheers.) Such, at all events, was the case in the self-governing colonies. Canadians present could bear testimony to the truth of his assertion that Canada to-day was a free, prosperous and happy country. (Cheers.) It was not always so, but the granting of representative institutions had worked that miracle. Prosperity and contentment had followed in the path opened by freedom. What was true for New Zealand was equally true for New Zealand and for Australia—indeed, there was only one shadow to that picture—one exception, which was South Africa. Until a few weeks ago, South Africa was scourged by war, which would not have broken out if free civil rights under the law of full citizenship to all had been given there without any discrimination. He was convinced, however, that what had taken place elsewhere would now be seen in South Africa under British rule. It was not in the genius of British history to make political changes simply for the gratification of a theory, or to round off sharp angles; but it was in the genius of British history to proceed slowly and cautiously, and never to change the condition of things until there was a grievance, and then to remove the grievance and to go on further. Historic experience taught with almost unvarying certainty that political changes brought about in the hope of carrying an object not immediately prompted by practical necessity generally failed. He afterwards reported to the strictest allegiance of Canada to this country. There was no fault in human affairs. He did not say that the time might not come when they might have a Parliament assembled in London from all parts of the globe. That would be a great spectacle no doubt, but not greater than the spectacle presented at this moment of a galaxy of free nations bound together by a sole allegiance to the same Sovereign. (Cheers.)

WHAT IS THE FLAG?

ALL OVER THE EMPIRE ARE MISTAKES MADE IN ITS FLYING.

A Fanning Question Anticipatorily Settled—The National Flag—When and How It Should Be Flown—Blunders in Flag Making—Flag Lore That is Interesting Just at the Present Season.

The flag of England, of Britain, is down all over the Empire, and yet in this flying there are many mistakes made. The Pall Gazette thinks so, and in a recent issue has an article which must interest all who fly the flag in Canada.

"What is the flag of England?
Winds of the world declare," is the question with which Mr. Kipling starts one of his patriotic poems.
If the winds that blow over London were asked to give their impression as to the answer, during these days of peace celebrations and coronation rejoicings, they would be rather puzzled to reply.

For the average Londoner, alike in St. James' and St. Giles', appears to be in hopeless bewilderment as to the name of the flag. He is not so sure which flag he ought to display. He is often utterly at sea as to how it ought to be made and how it ought to be hoisted. He flies the flag of other peoples under the mistaken impression that he is hanging out the British colors. He makes unwitting signals that move the seafaring man who can read them to a quiet knack at the ignorance of mere landmen. It is strange that such things should happen in the capital of a race of sailors and travelers, of whom every flag should have a distinct and well known significance.

First of all, there is a widespread misuse of a purely personal flag, the Royal Standard, which many otherwise well-informed people suppose to be that of the nation. If Sir Gorgius Midas were to quarter on his carriage panels the Lion of England, the Red Lion Rampant of Scotland, and the Irish Harp, everyone would think he had taken leave of his senses. When he dies the same heraldic device from the flagstaff is not regarded as an eccentricity on his part. But it is almost as bad as displaying the Royal Arms on his carriage or putting his servants into the royal liveries.

The Royal Standard is the King of England's banner and denotes his actual presence as Sovereign where it is flown. Thus it is not hoisted even on a royal palace unless he is in residence. It is displayed from the flagstaff of the parade when he is reviewing his troops. It is run up by a warship, as he comes on board.
Even the ambassadors who represent him abroad do not fly his flag. It is purely personal, like the golden yellow standard marked with a broad black cross and decorated with eagles and Imperial crowns, which in Germany denotes the Kaiser's presence. and which our German ever mistakes for the national flag, the own Royal Standard should not be vulgarized in the present unbecoming fashion.

The national flag, the flag of the Kingdom and the Empire, is to give it its popular name the Union Jack.
There are various flags of which it forms only a part and which are used for special purposes. It is a common mistake to take these for the national flag.

special signal flag, "I want a pilot," flown by ships nearing home.

By the way, Mr. Kipling, who one would think the last man to make such a slip, writes in "Stalky and Co." of a coaster in distress flying the Union Jack reversed as a signal for help. Of course a merchantman in such a position reverses the Red Ensign.

As red, white, and blue are the colors in the Union Jack, there seems to be a vague impression in many quarters that any combination of these colors may be flown, if a Union Jack, Red or White Ensign, pilot flag, or signal of distress is not handy. Hence the display of so many foreign tri-colors, the familiar French flag, the Dutch flag with its bands of color horizontal, and occasionally the flag of the Russian merchant marine.
This last is probably the result of the misguided energy of some amateur flag-maker, who sews three strips of bunting together, white at the top, blue in the middle, and red at the bottom. No doubt some of the French and Dutch flags are abused by foreign residents. But most of them are used merely because they are "red, white, and blue." There is no disposition to fly foreign flags as such in London.
Otherwise, how are we to account for the absence of a flag once popular in schemes of decoration, the handsome "Dannebrog," the flag of our Queen's native land? And why is there such a marked absence of the showy red and white flag of our ally, Japan?
In much traveling about London we have only seen one solitary specimen of this flag.

SEVEN PER CENT. DEAD.

The Terrible Cost of War in South Africa Completed.

The advent of peace has set British journalists counting up the losses in the war. From Oct. 11, 1899, to June 1, 1902, in all 314 months of war, the ultimate triumph of the British arms has cost 21,579 lives or nearly 7 per cent. of the troops engaged.

Taking the killed and wounded together, the casualties work out at 30,120 men, or nearly 10 per cent. of the total force.

The survivors of armed men total 9,714, or about 3 per cent. of the fighting line. Of these, six battalions, on whom fell the ordinary bad luck inseparable from a great campaign, account between them for 3,000 prisoners.

The health of the Imperial army, in spite of the severe strain imposed, has been remarkable. The figures of 13,000 deaths from disease spread over an average force of 200,000 men, in two and a half years, giving an annual death rate of only 26 per thousand.

Taking a per capita basis, we find the war has cost the colonies three lives for every 9,000 of their population, while it has cost the United Kingdom four lives for every 9,000
of its population.

Generals Symonds, Wauchope and Woodgate were killed, and Generals Lord Methuen (twice), Mardonald, Knox, Wood, Burton, Ian Hamilton (twice), Little, Rundle and Kekewich have been wounded. Lord Methuen was the only general to suffer capture.

Deaths from accidental causes throughout the campaign number no fewer than 785, of which 223 were cases of drowning. Train accidents account for 141 deaths, lightning for 52, accidental self-shooting for 16, mistakes by sentries for 4, and mischievous accidents, chiefly among mounted men, for 349. The are moreover six reported cases of suicide.

The Royal Standard is the King of England's banner and denotes his present presence. Sovereign where it is flown. Thus it is not surprising even on a royal palace unless he is in residence. It is displayed from
the flagstaff of the parade when he is
reviewing his troops. It is run up by
a warship as he comes on board.
Even the ambassadors who represent
him abroad do not fly his flag. It is purely personal, like the golden yellow standard marked with a bright black cross and decorated with eagles and Imperial crowns; which in hier-many denotes the Kaiser's presence, and which no German ever mistakes for the national flag. Our own Royal Standard should not be vulgarized in the present unmeaning fashion.

The national flag, the flag of the Kingdom and the Empire, is to give its popular name the Union Jack.
There are various flags of which it forms only a part and which are infamous for special purposes. It is a common mistake to take these for the national flag.

Among these are, first, the White Ensign with the Union in its top corner near the flagstaff or halyard, and the great red cross on a white ground—the cross that marked the flag of England in crusading days and in the wars of the Middle Ages.
This red cross is still the central device of the Union flag.

The White Ensign is the flag of our navy. In the same way the Red Ensign is the flag of our merchant marine. To fly the White or Red Ensign on a house is rather unmeaning what one ought to fly is the Union Jack, but then one must take care to get the right thing and hoist it right side up.

Most of the flags imported from abroad, and many of those made in England, blunder about the right combination of the three crosses. On both sides of the central red cross of St. George there is the same width of white bunting or silk, but the X-shaped red cross of St. Patrick has not the white that shows on both sides of it of equal width. On the side nearest the halyards it is broad above the red and narrow below, and this arrangement is reversed on the other side of the flag, the explanation being that the red cross is here superposed unevenly on the white cross of St. Andrew, so that the Scottish portion may not form a mere even border to it. To neglect this difference alters the whole appearance of the flag. But those who blunder err in distinguished company.

General Baden-Powell designed a poster some years ago for a military tournament he made St. Andrew's cross into a mere even white border to the red cross. Sir G.
Robertson and the gallant little garrison of Chitral improvised a Union Jack to fly over their beleaguered fort they made the same mistake.
When after the relief it was pointed out to them that such a flag, being the same which ever way it was hoisted, could not be reversed as a signal of distress, Sir George replied that they never thought of its use for such a purpose being in any way necessary. Mr. Punch, who an-nule is scrupulously accurate in matters of detail, drew the Union Jack in the same incorrect fashion a couple of weeks ago. To come down to lower folk, several firms of decorators are now circulating in London the flag they never thought of the national flag thus misrepresented. It is a very common mistake to hoist the correct flag upside down, thus signalling "In distress. Want assistance." And it is also to be seen, on some London houses, flying as another blunder.

The figures of 13,000 men from disease spread over an average force of 200,000
men, in two and a half years, giving
thousand.

the war has cost the colonies three
lives for every 9,000 of their population, while it has cost the United Kingdom four lives for every 9,000
of its population.

Generals Symons, Wauchope and Woodgate were killed, and Generals Lynch, Methuen (twice), Macdonald, Knox, Wood, Barton, Ian Hamilton (twice), Little, Bullard and Kesteven have been wounded. Lord Methuen
was the only general to suffer capture.

Deaths from accidental causes
fewer than 785, of which 224 were
cases of drowning. Train accidents
account for 141 deaths, lightning for 52, accidental scalding for 16, mistakes by sentries for 4, and miscellaneous accidents, chiefly among mounted men, for 349. There are,
moreover, six reported cases of suicide, one being a lieutenant-colonel, one a major, and four privates. Mining explosions claimed three lives, two men were killed by lions, one by a bull, one by a crocodile, and one is reported shot while attempting to escape from his captors.

Finally, the Victoria Cross has been given—perhaps a better word than won or earned—by every division of the Empire, except Wales and New Zealand. England claiming 29, South Africa 10, Scotland 2, Australia 4, Canada 3, Ireland 2, and India 1.

Hard Lessons in Good Manners.
School chaff is wholesome in most cases, but it may cramp what should not be cramped. As to the chaff which a man gives and gets at a university, however, we do not think there can be two opinions. It must do good, and it has not the opportunity of doing harm. Only those receive it who lay themselves open to receive it. The quiet man who wishes to read or to think starts no hard-ever come into contact with his fellows unless he so chooses. The swaggering or bumptious man, the opinionated man, the offensive man-these are certain to be chaffed, and the chaff usually goes home; not at once perhaps, but it usually gets there in the end with satisfactory consequences. The personal remark may be rude, but rudeness is often a very salutary weapon. It is certainly one of the most valuable instruments of English education. Indeed it may seem a strange thing to say, but it is surely true that continued experience of calculated, formulated and well intentioned rudeness teaches people to be polite.—London Spectator.

Chances of Life and Death.
The following table is one that is used by the London Assurance companies, showing the prospect of life at various ages. It is the result of several years of careful calculation and is said to seldom prove misleading or incorrect. Of course sudden and premature deaths, as well as lives unusually extended, occasionally occur, but this is a table of average expectancy of life of the ordinary man or woman. A person 1 year old may expect to live 39 years longer; of 10 years, 51; of 20 years, 41;
of 30 years, 34; of 40 years, 28; of 50 years, 21; of 60 years, 14; of 70 years, 9; of 80 years, 4. Readers of the Evening News will find the above statement facts which will tell them, approximately at least, how many years longer they may reasonably expect to live according to the law of averages.
